

Bowel Nosodes in Homeopathic Practice

Second Edition

JOHN SAXTON

BVetMed, VetFFHom, CertIAVH, MRCVS

Saltire Books

Saltire Books Limited, Glasgow, Scotland

Published by Saltire Books Ltd

18–20 Main Street, Busby, Glasgow G76 8DU, Scotland
books@saltirebooks.com www.saltirebooks.com

Cover, Design, Layout and Text © Saltire Books Ltd 2012

is a registered trademark

First edition published in 2008

Second edition published in 2012

Typeset by Type Study, Scarborough, UK in 9% on 13½ Stone Serif

Printed by Information Press Ltd, Eynsham, Oxford, UK

ISBN 978-1-908127-02-0

All rights reserved. Except for the purpose of private study, research, criticism or review, as permitted under the UK Copyright, Designs and Patent Act 1988, no part of this publication may be reproduced, stored or transmitted in any form or by any means, without prior written permission from the copyright holder.

The publisher makes no representation, express or implied, with regard to the accuracy of the information contained in this book and cannot accept any legal responsibility or liability for any errors or omissions that may be made.

The right of John Saxton to be identified as the author of this work has been asserted in accordance with the UK Copyright, Designs and Patent Act 1988.

A catalogue record for this book is available from the British library.

For Saltire

Project Development: Lee Kayne

Editorial: Steven Kayne

Designer: Phil Barker

FSC Mixed Sources

The timber or fibre in the product is a mixture of some/all of the following:

- Timber from an FSC-certified forest
- Post-consumer reclaimed material
- Controlled Sources, which exclude unacceptable forestry

CONTENTS

Preface to the first edition	xi
Preface to the second edition	xiii
About the author	xiv
Acknowledgements	xv
1 ORIGINS AND DEVELOPMENT	1
Sources and laboratory techniques. The principal workers and their influence on the nomenclature. Early conventional work and ideas about intestinal toxæmia. The phases of disease in relation to the bacterial bowel picture. Dr Bach's reservations about pathogenicity. Expanding and developing the homeopathic connection. Bowel function in relation to health. Terminology and bacteriology.
2 THE PRACTICAL IMPLICATIONS	17
The difference from other remedy relationships of the associated remedies. The observational basis for the concept of associated remedies. The lists of associated remedies. Modern drugs and the incompleteness of the lists. Chemical connections within the lists. Miasmatic connections of the bowel nosodes. The totality of symptoms. Are the bowel nosodes truly homeopathic? Are the bowel nosodes true nosodes? The relationship of the bowel nosodes to health and diet. The clinical situation of the bowel nosodes in animals.
3 THE CLINICAL APPLICATIONS	33
The usefulness in all species. The taking and use of a faecal swab. The other ways of using the nosodes clinically. Themes of the individual bowel nosodes. Dosage considerations. An illustrative case from John Paterson.

4 THE MORGAN GROUPS

45

Morgan Bach, Morgan Pure and Morgan Gaertner. Indications and materia medica.

Case 4.1 A non specific pruritis

A bowel nosode, selected on broad principles, in fact proves to be the required remedy.

Case 4.2 An unexpected twist

A well indicated remedy takes the case forward to a considerable degree, but the presenting symptom yields finally to the appropriate bowel nosode.

Case 4.3 Remedy choice within a group

The use of a bowel nosode indicated by the remedies employed previously unlocks the full effect of an indicated remedy.

Case 4.4 The depth of dis-ease

A chance injury produces a stubborn symptom that is linked to the underlying imbalance in the patient, and which is resolved finally by the use of a bowel nosode addressing that imbalance.

5 DYSENTERY CO.

65

Indications and materia medica.

Case 5.1 Getting to the root of fear

Various remedies are prescribed over time to address different manifestations of an underlying fear. It is only when the bowel nosode associated with the most successful of these is given that the final cure is obtained.

Case 5.2 A shaky start to a career

A talented but unconfident new veterinary surgeon falls victim to a winter epidemic and fails to throw off its lingering effects until a suitable bowel nosode is administered.

Case 5.3 A young life ruled by fear

Homeopathic treatment is sought for a young dog whose fears are making life difficult for both her and her owner. The prescription of a bowel nosode produces not only an overall improvement but indicates also the remedies required to resolve the problem.

6 PROTEUS 81

Indications and materia medica.

Case 6.1 Lovesick and worried

Physical symptoms defy conventional diagnosis, but homeopathy provides both initial relief of symptoms and, via the use of a bowel nosode, the final solution to the condition.

Case 6.2 Overwhelmed by siblings

Problems arise for a growing child that appear as physical, but which are resolved by a bowel nosode addressing the underlying tensions of family life.

Case 6.3 A fit of the nerves or something more?

An epileptic dog is controlled reasonably but not completely by anti-convulsant drugs whilst another negative behavioural trait remains. The use of an appropriate bowel nosode resolves the epilepsy and points the way to solving the other behavioural problem.

7 SYCOTIC CO. 97

Indications and materia medica.

Case 7.1 The obvious is not always the complete answer

A vaccinosis is created by inappropriate conventional treatment. Due to the patient's miasmatic balance, this manifests as predominantly sycotic. An appropriate remedy gives some improvement but it is not until a bowel nosode is prescribed that the miasmatic balance is moved towards psora and a cure obtained.

Case 7.2 The ravages of time

An indicated remedy produces some improvement of a palliative nature. An appropriate bowel nosode is introduced with the aim of augmenting the remedy's action but in the event the nosode appears to act as a remedy in its own right.

Case 7.3 An obstacle to academic achievement

Homeopathic remedies are given, with some success, for a disabling condition. However, it is not until the introduction of the bowel nosode that the desired breakthrough is obtained.

8 GAERTNER BACH

113

Indications and materia medica.

Case 8.1 A frustrating dog

An apparently healthy dog is affected by appetite problems and an inability to gain or retain body weight. The use of the indicated bowel nosode and one of its associated remedies produces the desired effect.

Case 8.2 Vital support for a failing system

A geriatric patient is helped in the closing years of his life by the periodic prescription of the relevant bowel nosode.

Case 8.3 Limping through life

A young dog's mobility is curtailed by chronic foot problems. Conventional treatment provides only temporary relief and it is not until homeopathic treatment, including a bowel nosode, is employed that a permanent solution is found.

9 BACILLUS NO. 7

129

Indications and materia medica.

Case 9.1 A difficult patient

An injury tips a horse into an acute expression of its constitutional type. The appropriate remedy gives considerable success but it is not until the prescription of the associated bowel nosode that the full benefits are seen.

Case 9.2 Exhausted after being 'cured'

After a long period of ill health, a lady is promised that a hysterectomy will resolve her problem. Post-operatively she experiences continued problems until a bowel nosode provides the answer.

10 BACILLUS NO. 10

141

Indications and materia medica.

Case 10.1 Life in the old dog yet

An active ex agility dog develops conditions common to the older animal. Conventional medication fails to relieve the situation. Initial homeopathic treatment results in some alleviation but it requires the use of a bowel nosode to achieve a significant improvement.

Case 10.2 Vanity strikes back

A lady had exhibited concerns about her appearance for a number of years, resulting in cosmetic surgery on two occasions. Following the second operation a benign lesion appears in the region of the first intervention. The option of further surgery to remove the lesion is rejected and the use of a bowel nosode resolves the matter.

11 THE SMALLER GROUPS

153

Mutabile, Faecalis, Coccal Co and Polybowel. Indications and materia medica.

Case 11.1 An outstanding symptom

One very strong symptom determines the choice of remedy, which is initially successful. Support from the associated bowel nosode does not resolve matters but moves the case's miasmatic expression, leading to a change of bowel nosode.

Case 11.2 A victim of circumstances

A cat is involved in a territorial dispute and as a result develops a problem of persistent infection. The initial remedy fails to act but the bowel nosode opens up the case.

Case 11.3 A persistent nuisance

A middle aged man is left with a recurrent sore throat following a severe winter cold/flu. Other remedies help with the acute phase but a bowel nosode is used to resolve the throat symptom.

Appendix

167

The expanded associated remedy lists taking account of modern knowledge. Potency chords.

References

173

Index

179

